BIO

Growing up in poverty in East Hollywood, Bear had to fend for himself. He started working as a bus boy at a McDonald's in middle school and made his way to fry cook before finding a better opportunity at a medium scale restaurant on Hollywood Blvd. He dropped out of high school because he was providing for himself and his family as a part time chef and wanted to do more as a full time worker. Having served his time in the back kitchens, he's gotten his GED and is a part time student getting his associates. He's found better money in being a private chef for the wealthier neighborhoods of Hollywood and is looking for a better solution for managing his clients than his various composition notebooks.
